

In which scenarios an application need to use service manager API if IARM Bus interface is already available?

It looks like IARM Bus interface is sufficient for Application to call methods, get events from RDK component.

Then why do we need Service Manage interface?

How it is different from IARM Bus?